Possible Views

we are oppressed

The author of Ephesians writes: 'Our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the power of this dark world...'

This is the language the American and British governments have used about terrorists, but...it is used more appropriately of the structure of world trade, and especially of the MNCs [Multi-National Corporations]...

These people are trading in human misery. Elliott Associates are picking over the bones of the Peruvian economy like a pack vultures. It may be just business to them but to the children of Peru it is school books, medicines and clean water.

This is the reality of globalization, the true nature of the global market.

American demand for goods and services is not organic. That is, the demands are not internally created by a consumer....

[D]emands are created by advertisers and the "machinery for consumer-demand creation" that benefit from increased consumer spending.

John Kenneth Galbraith
The Affluent Society

Possible Views

Americans are beyond apologizing for their lifestyle of scorched-earth consumerism....

Time was, decadence on this scale was something to fear.... But somehow....[w]e have decided not to avoid decadence but to embrace it.

But Won't We Hit a Wall?

“Malthusian”

The power of population is so superior to the power in the earth to produce subsistence for man, that premature death must in some shape or other visit the human race. The vices of mankind....are the precursors in the great army of destruction; and often finish the dreadful work themselves.

But should they fail in this war of extermination, sickly seasons, epidemics, pestilence, and plague, advance in terrific array, and sweep off their thousands and ten thousands.

Should success be still incomplete, gigantic inevitable famine stalks in the rear, and with one mighty blow levels the population with the food of the world.
